THE ESTEY POLICY.

The numerous pianos designated as "stencils" are pianos which cannot be traced to the factory in which they were made. Such pianos have no standing, and no firm can be held responsible for them. The Estey Company takes pride in the fact that it does not carry in stock an instrument of such a "caste." Every instrument it handles is of known origin, either an Estey or some other reputable make.

any other state prison where a murderess ondemned to death would have cellmates? Vermont supports several institutions, mong them a so-called house of correction at Rutland and a house of prostitution at Windsor which is not so-called. Representative Babcock, of Wisconsin hairman of the Republican Congressional ommittee, and the original tariff reformer on the majority side of the House, sees session of Congress. And the time-keeper in this fatal fight at the naval academy was a Vermonter! And from that peaceful town of St. Johnsbury, too.—[Barre Times.

itions which have been allowed to exist at the Windsor prison burns on the cheeks of every Vermenter, it is due the state That thread is held in the hands of ind present prison management to say that all of the guilty employes have been discharged, and that there now remain at the prison only two persons, the matron and one guard, an elderly man, who were employed there under the Oakes regime.

P. W. Clement of Rutland is another of the Vermont colony who have chosen Boston as a winter residence. He is quartered in a Back Bay hotel.—[Society column of Boston Record.

Zounds! Our Percy no longer "in our nidst?" Perhaps he has changed his campaign tactics. Perhaps, drawing a leson from the past, he thinks it will be easier to win a long-range governorship contest from Boston than from Rutland. It looks now, however, as if Percy's governorship boom was a punctured balloon or

John H. Merrifield has no stancher supporter, no warmer admirer and no truer friend among all the newspapers which have spoken complimentarily of him than The Phoenix. It would be refreshing to see the office bestowed upon the man who is not seeking it. There is only one objection to Mr. Merrifield's nomination. While we deprecate the rule once in vogue of promoting the lieutenant governor to the chief executive's office, we should not wish to see Mr. Merrifield permanently shelved as a result of holding the minor office. He is big enough to be governor of Vermont.

A correspondent of the Burlington Free Press points out that all of the judges now serving in the Vermont supreme court recelved their original appointments from governors of the state, and that when Gov. Bell has appointed a successor to the the late Judge Start we shall have for the first time in the state's history a supreme court with all of its members first placed on the beach by gubernatorial appointment and not by election of the legislature. There are several candidates for the vacant position but it would not be surprising if the appointment went to Judge F. M. Butler of the firm of Butler & Moloney of Rutland. The section of the state which he represents has not had a judge of the supreme court in 18 years, and it is said that he will have the unanimous support of his bar associates in his home county.

In connection with the call upon the President of a delegation of boot and shoe and leather manufacturers to make a plea for free hides, the fact has developed that last week, immediately after the state election, Governor-elect Curtis Guild. jr., addressed a letter to President Roosevelt in which he urged the necessity for tariff revision in the strongest way. Mr. Guild told the President that he believed the Republican ticket would have been overwhelmingly defeated had not the party platform indorsed the demand for immediate tariff revision. "Both parties desire it," he said, and "here in Massachusetts the duty on hides is anathema." There can be no question of the desire of the overwhelming majority of the people of Massachusetts for attention to such matters as this in the immediate revision of the tariff." This letter was given to the press yesterday by consent both of Mr. Gulld and of the President.

President Roosevelt received Wednes day a delegation of boot and shoe and leather manufacturers, headed by Gov. William L. Douglas of Massachusetts who addressed the President in behalf of the movement to secure a repeal of the duty on hides. Other members of the delegation also spoke in behalf of this movement. President Roosevelt, in replying, declined to enter into a discussion of the question of free hides, but said that it would have painstaking consideration in full recognition of the importance of this great industry. With his accustomed frankness the President told the delegation that his reason for declining to discuss the whole situation was that last year when a similar delegation called on him his remarks were garbled in the report afterward used and that in the recent political campaign in Massachusetts Mr. Whitney, the Democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor, had misquoted his words, and, as the President was constrained to believe, had deliberately misrepresented what occurred, taking advantage of the fact, which he knew very well, that a President of the United States could not answer him or enter into a discussion with him.

The New York Herald's St. Petersburg orrespondent cables to that paper s highly interesting account picturing the and seemingly impossible changes which have taken place in Russia in the last few weeks, since the Czar's decree giving the people political the imperial family, the nobility and the bureaurocracy who are in evidence in the streets of St. Petersburg, but the common people, bound to assert their new-found liberty at whatever cost. The newspapers, relieved of the bar of censorship. go to strange extremes of attack and insulting abuse of officials who have fallen under their displeasure, "The Winter Palace is occupied by that king of democrats, Count Sergius Witte, a man hated by the Emperor, an enemy of the Grand Dukes. And Countess Witte, is there. too, waited on by imperial servants." Counte Witte it is who is virtually in command of the Russian empire. has shown a taste of his temper by dismissing four peccant governors of provinces in one day, and at his belt hang the political scalps of six ministers who fell the same day." But there is a greater than Witte. The "Union of Unions," a new and admirably organized combination of the labor interests of the empire. publishes daily its decisions upon questions of political interest of the moment, and these decisions even Count Witte is bound to respect, for the Union has both the power and the money to enforce its demands. The burden which rests on Count Witte if the country is to be saved from disruption and anarchy, is greater than has been borne by any man in recent times "The terrifying truth is that at the present moment only a slender thread reliberated Russia and anarchy let loose on a scale that the world has never known. Count Sergius Witte. Should it snap, desolation, disorder, bloodshed and even civil war are sure to follow." What Count Witte needs is patience on the part of the people, and time in which to do the work that must be done. If these are granted him the outcome is well assured. for of his ability and his sincerity there is no doubt. "Count Witte hates the bureaucrats as the curse of his country. We will sweep their power away relentlessly. He knows all their tricks and how to counteract them and will enjoy doing so. He has the fullest faith in his own powers. His only and his supreme doubt lies in the question as to whether the people will give him time," as described by the correspondent, and it is the same in all the great centres of population in the great Russian empire. A secret reign of terror prevails among are ready to fice the country at a mo-ment's notice. Foreigners throng the embaseies anxious for advice, and this advice usually is that, in view of the critical situation. It is wise to send families

James H. Hyde's Disclosures at Insurance

Investigation. James Hazen Hyde, former vice president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, testified before the Armstrong investigating committee Tuesday that he had contributed $212.500 to the forced settlement of the $685,000 loan, known as the "J. W. Alexander No. 3 account," because he felt bound to see that the debt was liquidated by reason of a letter Alexander extracted from him; charged E. H. Harriman and H. C. Frick with conspiring to get him out of the country; charged Frick with breach of faith in leading him to believe the Frick committee was friendly, and charged Harriman with advising the settlement of Odeli's suit against the Mercantile Trust company, be-cause Harriman feared retaliatory measures at Albany. On Wednesday he told of four offers besides that of Ryan for the Equitable stock. They were made, said Mr. Hyde, by Mr. Frick and Mr. Harriman, by by Mr. Frick and Mr. Harriman, by George Gould, by Gage E. Tarbell, rep-resenting a syndicate, and by George W. Young. All these offers were verbal, and that of Mr. Young, the largest, was for
